

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Scroll pumping apparatus includes a first scroll element and a second scroll element, a drive mechanism operatively coupled to the second scroll element for producing orbiting motion of the second scroll element relative to the first scroll element, and a synchronization device
5 including a strip having connected, substantially flat sections, coupled between the first scroll element and the second scroll element. The synchronization device may have a generally square configuration.